SYNOPSIS:

Comedy / Drama | Japanese & English
Ringo Juice = Apple Juice (in Japanese)

Blending whimsical comedy, soulful drama, and visual poetry, Ringo Juice tells the story of Hanako, a quirky, restless Japanese girl who impulsively travels to America after watching an interview with her favorite American actor – despite not speaking a word of English.

But Hanako has a rare condition: if she doesn't drink apple juice every day, she might die.

What begins as a comical and desperate search for “Ringo Juice” (the Japanese word for apple juice) evolves into a deeper emotional journey – a metaphor for self-acceptance, connection, and choosing joy even when you feel like you don't belong.

PRODUCER • WRITER

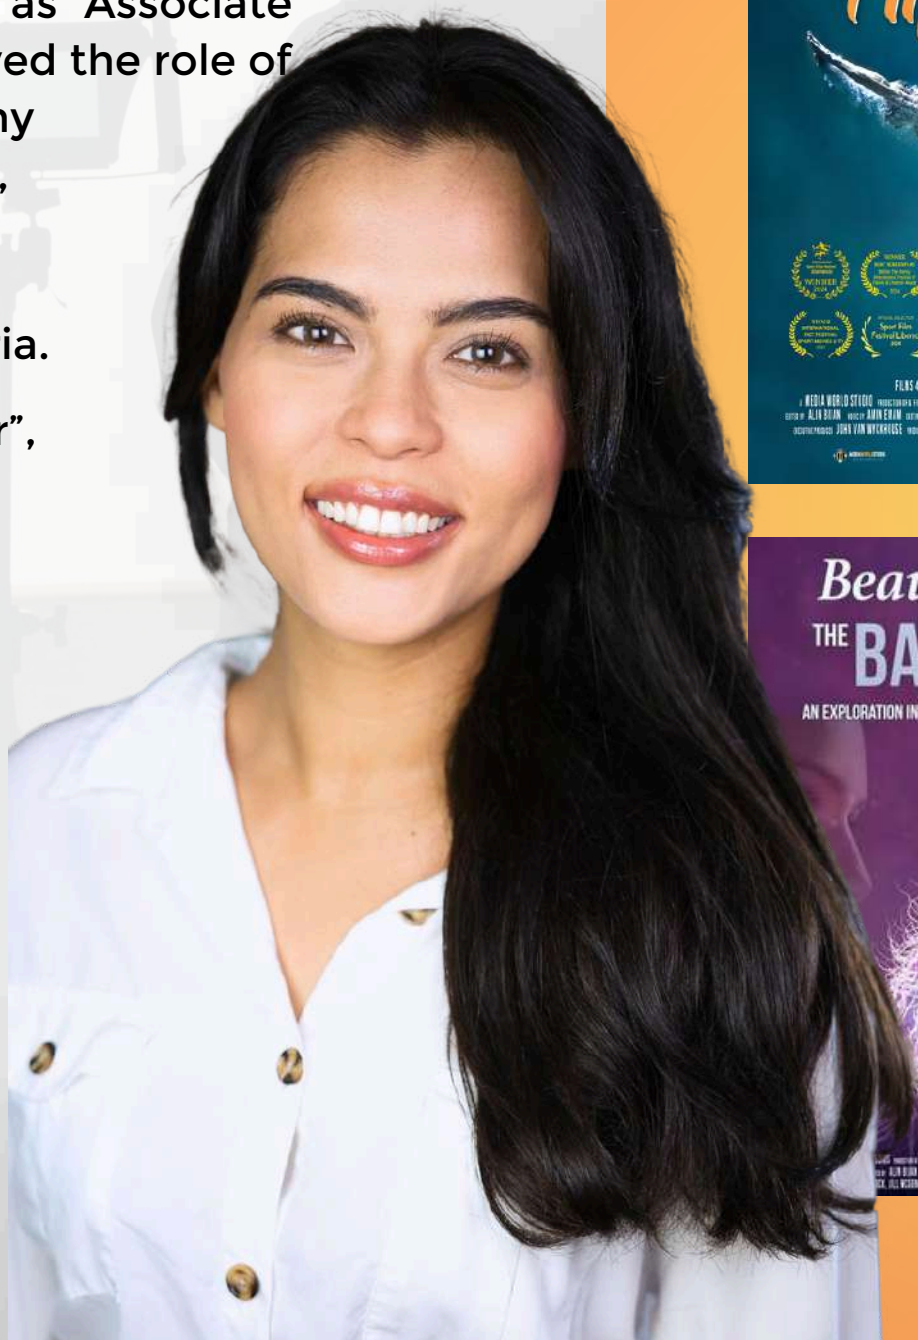

SETY GUCHI

Sety Guchi is a Japanese producer, writer, and actress working across both the United States and Japan. She began her career with one of Tokyo’s most renowned action theater companies, Super Play KAPSEL CORPS. As a standout performer and core member of the troupe, Sety took on a wide range of stage roles and earned acclaim for her dynamic performances. She also wrote and directed the original action-comedy stage play “My Tiny World: Rapunzel”, which was warmly received by audiences in Tokyo.

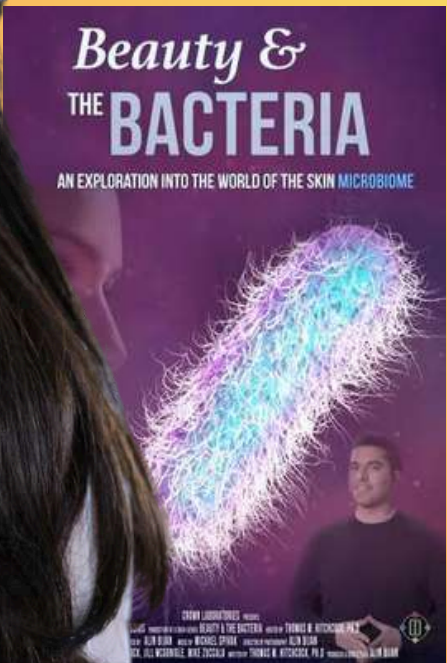

After relocating to the U.S. to expand her international career, Sety served as Associate Producer on the award-winning sports drama “Flip Turn”, in which she also portrayed the role of Kimi. She was also a producer on the feature film “The Performance”, starring Emmy Award winner Jeremy Piven. Most recently, she wrote and produced “Ringo Juice”, a Japanese-American comedy drama about cultural identity, self-discovery, and the beauty of the present moment. Her additional credits include the science documentary series Beauty & The Bacteria.

Sety also wrote and directed the acclaimed short film “Every Second Is a Light Year”, which won Best Picture at Kinemaza International Film Festival in Japan and was nominated for Best Script at a festival in Germany.

This positions "Ringo Juice" to capture attention on the global stage and attract widespread interest.

LOCATIONS

DALLAS - TOKYO

RINGO JUICE was filmed in two vibrant and visually striking cities: Tokyo and Dallas.

TOKYO, one of Asia's most dynamic capitals, offers a captivating blend of traditional culture and cutting-edge modernity. This unique contrast creates a rich visual landscape that adds depth and beauty to the film. Thanks to the generous support of the Nihonbashi Film Commission and Studio Gift Tokyo, we were able to capture stunning scenes in some of the city's most iconic and atmospheric locations.

DALLAS, one of the fastest-growing cities and, without a question one of America's most impressive city provides a distinctly American backdrop with its impressive skyline and vibrant urban energy. Its modern architecture and diverse settings made it an ideal location to reflect the cultural shift and contrast within the story.
